

F 0170 – Jack Miner Collection

FINDING AID

This fonds consists of a single file containing promotional publications related to celebrated Canadian conservationist Jack Miner, his work, ideas, and legacy. Many show the involvement of his son Manly, and touch on his migratory bird sanctuary near Kingsville, Ontario.

Item Listing:

Guideposts (May 1948, Fourth Week)

- Features articles about Jack Miner and his faith.

My Father – Jack Miner: Manly F. Miner Reports – Report Number 1, Jack Miner’s Conservation Policy, His Philosophy and Reasoning

- ca. 1971
- Includes reproduction of laudatory letter from John Merrill Olin (20 September 1971)
- Includes financial appeal insert

Jack Miner: His Advice, Suggestions and a few of his Accomplishments As recorded by his son Manly Miner, Winter of January and February, 1972

- Cover personally signed by Manly Miner

Untitled tribute booklet to Jack Miner and National Wildlife Week (cover photo features Jack Miner and M.P. John R. MacNicol holding Canada geese)

- ca. late 1960s or early 1970s?

Please Give Us a Break by Helping the Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation Inc.

- ca. late 1960s or early 1970s?
- Features articles by or about Jack Miner, and wildlife conservation
- Printed and paid for by Manly Miner

Untitled booklet photo-retrospective of Jack Miner (cover photo is a portrait of Jack Miner in profile with signature below)

- ca. early 1970s
- Includes financial appeal insert

Untitled booklet of articles, tributes, photographs, and reproduced documents relating to Jack Miner and his work (cover photo is a portrait of Jack Miner holding binoculars, with “Jack Miner’s Testimony” and signature at right)

- Ca. early 1970s
- Includes financial appeal insert

F 0170 – Jack Miner Collection

Mel Ellis, “Naturalist Stirs Controversy 30 Years After His Death.” Reprint of 1974 article.

Frank Ratcliffe, “Jack Miner: Father of Conservation.” Reprint of 1975 article.

- Financial appeal booklet for the Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation